

Cuboid Tanks

Over the years Dunlop GRG has built up a range of products for commercial applications. Some of these items are derivatives of products originally designed for military applications and adapted for more general use.

The list of commercial products supplied by Dunlop GRG is extensive and a significant number are fabricated to the customer's specific requirements. The more standard range of products include:

Collapsible Containers

Suitable for the bulk static storage of a variety of liquids for commercial applications and now becoming increasingly important in the transportation due to the economic savings of "backloading". We now supply many of our tanks for resin transportation around Europe.